The Keystone Policy Center (KPC) is a non-profit organization founded in 1975 to drive actionable, shared solutions to contentious policy challenges, recognized for independent, collaborative problem-solving approaches. Keystone established its Leadership Awards in 1994 to recognize extraordinary leadership by individuals and organizations whose work embraces its model, spirit, and mission of creating lasting solutions through strategic collaboration.

In receiving this prestigious distinction, Schwartz was joined by the Hon. Michael S. Regan, Administrator, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency; Jennifer Griffin, Chief National Security Correspondent, Fox News; and Jonathan Pershing, Program Director of Environment at the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation. Notable energy leaders among its past recipients include the Hon. Willie Phillips, Chairman, U.S. Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (2023); Paula R. Glover, President, the Alliance to Save Energy (2021); Tom Kuhn, Anterix Vice Chair and former President & CEO, Edison Electric Institute (2019); Paula Gold-Williams, Keystone Policy Center Board of Trustees Co-Chair and former President & CEO, CPS Energy (2018); and the Hon. Ernest Moniz, former U.S. Secretary of Energy (2015).

"This recognition honors Rob's distinguished leadership at Anterix, which is enriching both the energy and telecommunications sectors," said Gold-Williams. "Anterix, with Rob's inspiring direction, is executing on a strategic vision of enhanced collaboration with our nation's utilities to build secure and resilient private communications networks while working to modernize our essential electric grid. Together with the contributions of all of this year's KPC winners, Rob is helping to drive actionable, collaborative solutions that advance the public interest, by confronting many of America's most contentious policy obstacles. This is instrumental in creating genuine change and better serving an ever-growing number of customers and communities."

"I am humbled and honored to have been selected as one of KPC's Leadership Award recipients," Schwartz said.
